

Award Winning Board Game, What's a DAME to do?! is also a Thrifty Find for the Holidays

What's a DAME to do?! wins first ever Golden Footprint Award and is recognized as a great gift for any woman on your list.

Phoenixville, PA (PRWeb) December 9, 2008 -- What's a DAME to Do?! was named the first recipient of Board Game Beast's Golden Footprint award.

"Our reviewer, Amanda Nettgen, gave it the top mark of five footprints," says Ashley Cotter-Cairns, BoardgameBeast.com founder. "We discussed it and felt that the concept was original, hilarious and likely to be enduring, filled a void in a market served by plenty of average products and offered great value for money," Cotter-Cairns explains.

In her review, Nettgen writes, "Simple yet genius. You couldn't ask for a better activity to play at your bachelorette party, baby shower, or associated girls night. It's practically a no-fail gift for any lovely lady in your life, so long as she likes to laugh."

The people at Board Game Beast aren't the only ones who think What's a DAME to Do?! is the perfect gift. FOX News, Chicago Tribune's RedEye, Stylebakery, Work It, girlfriendcelebrations.com, thedirtyshirt.com, Bucks County Woman Magazine and Mom Central all agree that this party board game is one of the top holiday gifts for women.

"If you're looking for a gift that the women on your list will love AND you want something that won't break the budget, What's a DAME to do?! is it," says Laura Lathan, editor of Work It: a blog for working moms "When I hosted a game night, it was the most economical girls night out so far. Including the cost of the game, I spent less per person than we would have each spent on a movie ticket and popcorn. And we enjoyed wine, chocolate and all sorts of other good eats," she asserts.
